Linda Miller

Linda Miller is an Senior Executive Coach for Blanchard® who is known for her direct communication style and touch of unexpected humor. Her personalized and collaborative approach creates an engaging and action-focused coaching experience for leaders.

Linda has been coaching leaders since 1996, when she helped launch Corporate Coach U. Her expertise is in leadership development, onboarding of new team members, team building, and executive leadership. She co-authored Blanchard's Coaching Essentials® for Leaders and Blanchard Management Essentials® along with two books in the coaching industry. She has contributed chapters in several leadership books and has been featured on podcasts.

In addition to leadership and executive coaching, Linda designed and currently facilitates coach training programs in global organizations and educational institutions.

Linda holds two Master's degrees and received an honorary Doctorate for her contribution to the coaching industry. She is certified in Lominger 360° and Booth 360°, is an MCC credentialed coach with the International Coaching Federation (ICF), and is fluent in English.

One of Linda's favorite activities is moderating political debates. In 2008, 2010, and 2012, she moderated state legislative debates throughout Arizona. In her free time, she enjoys hiking, glamping with her husband in their RV, and reading.
