Build a Foundation of Trust

Successful and healthy workplaces are built on a foundation of trust. When work relationships are rooted in trust, companies see improved communication, greater innovation, and increased revenue overall.

But when trust is broken, the work environment becomes toxic. People become stressed and work in silos, there's low collaboration, and morale and productivity drop. Employees who don't trust their coworkers or leaders don't perform to their potential, and often leave the company.

At Blanchard®, we know it can be challenging to identify and address trust issues within your organization. That's why we created a four-step model that is easy to learn, easy to remember, and easy to use on the job. Our Building Trust program teaches leaders and their team members how to build trust to increase engagement, creativity, and organizational commitment.
