

MCA | Mass Notification Solutions

MCA offers your organization a vast portfolio of the latest wired and wireless mass notification and alerting technologies available on the market today.

Integrated Alerting Solutions from MCA

Mass Notification Systems (MNS) broadcast critical messages that inform your employees, students, clients, or the general public, of pertinent, need-to-know information. They are especially important during an emergency. These systems can deliver real-time alerts, sound alarms, and deliver instructions during man-made or natural disasters.

MCA designs, installs, and maintains world-class mass alert and notification solutions for both public and private enterprises from coast-to-coast. Our fully integrated mass notification systems keep your people advised of events that occur while providing vital instructions for any actions they need to take.

MNS solutions incorporate many different methods of communicating critical information to your people. From audible sirens that direct workers' during critical events to indoor digital signage that tells your customers what to do, where to go, and more. Having a fully functioning and well-designed mass notification system is essential any organization that places a high value on their peoples safety and security.

Who We Work With

In noisy or expansive geographic environments, informing people of hazardous situations can be difficult without critical notification systems in place. Our MNS solutions include devices and software to help keep your employees and citizens safe with text, siren, voice, and other alerts.

Audible Sirens

MCA partners with the world's top manufacturers, like Whelen, to provide organizations with audible alarms that alert your people of important events. Signaling people about workplace disasters or impending weather anomalies, sirens are a critical component of your organization's safety systems.

Announcement Systems

While tornado sirens have a sound many recognize, it's not always clear to those hearing them to how to prepare, for whatever emergency situation has arisen. PA systems for production line alerts, community evacuations, and police vehicles, can provide specific voice instructions that help guide people to safety.

Beacons and Lighting

From strobe lights to flash sirens, warning beacons play a vital role in alerting the public, especially for those that are hearing impaired. The safety of your organization depends on people's awareness of potential dangers. Lighting systems command the attention of your employees, customers, and the public.

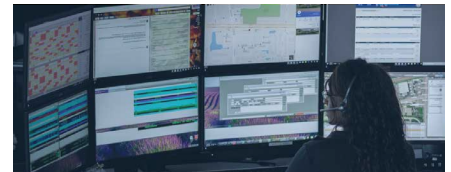

Indoor Signage

While digital signage is most commonly used to display advertising, the team at MCA is able to offer solutions that can co-opt that signage in the event of an emergency situation, overriding mundane sales and marketing displays with hard to ignore emergency notifications.

Device-Based Alerts

In noisy or expansive geographic environments, informing people of potentially hazardous situations can be difficult without key notification systems in place. Our mass notification solutions include devices and software to help keep your employees and citizens safe with text, siren, voice, and other alerts.

Integrated Software

When your organization controls numerous sirens, speakers, and lighting systems spread across large campuses, or entire counties you need a smart siren control management system. MCA can install, configure, and integrate software to effectively control device for activations and more.
