Principal protection with stable value

Each TDF has a portion of its fixed income investment allocated to a Transamerica stable value option.⁴ Including a stable value option results in reduced volatility for the portion of the portfolio allocated to it. Stable value long-term returns resemble an intermediate-term bond fund with a volatility similar to money market funds.⁵ The principal and interest of the Transamerica stable value option is guaranteed by Transamerica Life Insurance Company.

Built to manage uncertainty

As plan participants save and invest for retirement, TDFs with a stable value option can help them navigate five areas of uncertainty.

Glide path for life

Both to-retirement and through-retirement options

This graphic is provided for illustrative purposes only and does not represent a specific glide path strategy within the series.

Sources of risk	How target date funds manage risk
Volatility risk Inconsistent investment return	The stable value option within a TDF offers more consistent return profiles when compared to a high-quality bond portfolio of similar duration.
Market risk Financial market losses	TDFs seek to maximize growth potential early in an investor's career and adjust equity exposure to reduce the impact of market declines as retirement nears.
Longevity risk Outliving savings	As people live longer, TDFs follow a glide path designed to help provide appropriate investment risk through retirement.
Behavioral risk Trying to time the market	There is no need to adjust investment allocations because a TDF is designed to maintain a suitable mix based on the participant's age.
Inflation risk Reduced purchasing power	Throughout the retirement journey, TDFs adjust asset allocation levels to provide a hedge against inflation shock at retirement.

⁴ Allocation to a Transamerica stable value option will not exceed 50% of a glide path.

Risks Associated with Investing in the Funds

Transamerica *SmartCourse*SM with J.P. Morgan[®], *LifeGoal*SM with BlackRock[®] and RetireOnTrack[®] with American Funds[®] collective investment trusts are target date funds with the target date being the approximate year in which a participant plans to retire. Generally, the asset allocations of each Fund will change periodically becoming more conservative as the Fund nears the target retirement date. Investments in a Fund are not guaranteed at any time, including at and after the target date. Each Fund may have an asset allocation among a group annuity contract as well as collective investment trusts that primarily invest in one or more of the following: fixed-income, high-yield debt, emerging markets, real estate investment trusts, emerging markets equity, international stocks, U.S. large, small and mid-cap stocks. The risks of the asset classes vary, and the risks of each Fund reflect the allocation of its assets amongst the various asset classes. In general, the later the target retirement date in the Fund name, the higher the level of risk of the Fund because those Funds will normally invest a higher percentage in equities and higher-risk fixed-income securities. An investment in a Fund is not a bank deposit and is not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency. A participant may lose value by allocating to the Fund. Certain Funds may also invest in certain funds advised by Transamerica Asset Management, Inc., and distributed by Transamerica Capital, Inc., a member of FINRA. 1801 California St. Suite 5200, Denver, CO 80202.
