Aglaonema, more familiarly called Chinese Evergreen, traces its roots to the lush tropical and subtropical landscapes of Asia and New Guinea. Because they naturally grow on the shaded forest floor, these plants have adapted to flourish in environments with high humidity and lower sunlight.

LIGHT

Low to medium indirect light

WATER

Allow the top inch or two of soil to dry out between waterings.

FERTILIZER

Feed once per month at half strength when plant is actively growing in spring and summer. When days get shorter, reduce fertilizer and water.

GROWTH

Slow clumping, upright growth habit
