A Data Platform to Accelerate Health Plan Performance

Health plans today face increasing challenges. Having a solid foundation of data to tackle issues such as fraud and abuse, member engagement, and risk management can significantly improve performance, increase member satisfaction, and lower costs.

Clinical Data Exchange

The increase of medical record requests to providers from payers is growing 20% to 30% per year; information that would ultimately help adjust risk and improve quality more effectively.[1]

Member Engagement

One study found that over 37% of health plan members had no engagement with their health plan, limiting opportunities for care.[2]

Risk Management

Tackling risk is critical for solid operational performance, but it's impossible to see the full picture with limited data.

"Arcadia's data platform is somehow the most valuable thing we have. This data asset that we built with Arcadia is the foundation for all our analytics and all the other work we do. We have found it to be scalable, stable, and flexible. We integrate not only very normalized clinical and claims data sets but also a lot of other data. And Arcadia can handle that and present that data. If every product that Arcadia sells were to go away completely tomorrow, we would still want to have this data asset. We spent years building it, and Arcadia does a very good job. I would dare anybody to go to another vendor and have them try to integrate the level of data that we have integrated with Arcadia. Their data platform always blows me away, and Arcadia deserves credit."
