WHAT DOES IT FEEL LIKE?

A NOVEL

Sophie Kinsella

NEW YORK TIMES BESTSELLING AUTHOR

EDITOR'S CHOICE #5

Eve is a successful novelist who wakes up one day in a hospital bed with no memory of how she got there. Her husband explains that she has had an operation to remove the tumor in her brain. As Eve learns to walk, talk, and write again, she begins to recall what's most important to her: long walks with her husband, family game nights, and always buying that dress when she sees it. Recounted in brief anecdotes, each one is an attempt to answer the questions recognizable to anyone navigating the labyrinth of grief. This short, extraordinary novel is a celebration of life, shot through with warmth and humor — it will both break your heart and put it back together again.

LIBRARY READS PICK

PUBLISHERS WEEKLY BESTSELLER

"This slow-burn love story from Poston is as much an ode to romance novels and friendship as it is about romantic relationships. Fans of small-town contemporary romance will sink easily into quaint Eloraton." — Library Journal

When Eileen Merriweather's car unexpectedly breaks down, she finds herself stranded in a town that feels like it's right out of a novel. Because it is. This place can't be real, and yet . . . she's here, in Eloraton, the town of her favorite romance series. It's perfectly frozen, trapped in the late author's last unfinished story. Elsy is sure she must be here to help bring the town to its storybook ending. Except there is a character in Eloraton that she can't place — a grumpy bookstore owner who does not want her finishing this book. Which is a problem because Elsy is beginning to think the town's happily-ever-after might just be intertwined with her own.

There's been a sensational murder at historic Castle Kinloch, a gothic fantasy of grey granite on a remote island in the Highlands of Scotland. Literary superstar Brett Saffron Presley has been found dead in the castle tower's book-lined study. Detective Chief Inspector Euan McIntosh, a local with no love for literary Americans, finds himself with the unenviable task of extracting statements from three American lady novelists. The prime suspects are Kat de Noir, a slinky erotica writer; Cassie Pringle, a Southern mom of six juggling multiple cozy mystery series; and Emma Endicott, a New England blue blood and author of critically acclaimed historical fiction. The women claim to be best friends writing a book together, but the authors' stories about how they know Brett Saffron Presley don't quite line up, and the detective is getting increasingly suspicious.

SONNY BOY
A MEMOIR
Al Pacino

NEW YORK TIMES BESTSELLING AUTHOR

Sonny Boy is the memoir of a man who has nothing left to fear and nothing left to hide. All the great roles, the essential collaborations, and the important relationships are given their full due, as is the vexed marriage between creativity and commerce at the highest levels. The book's golden thread, however, is the spirit of love and purpose. Love can fail you, and you can be defeated in your ambitions — the same lights that shine bright can also dim. But Al Pacino was lucky enough to fall deeply in love with a craft before he had the foggiest idea of any of its earthly rewards, and he never fell out of love. That has made all the difference.
