- Second Circuit, New York – One of the most influential circuits in the United States, often cited in business and copyright law rulings.

LANDMARK RECORDS AND BRIEFS OF THE U.S. COURTS OF APPEALS, PART II: 1891–1950

Address questions concerning the administration of justice, the adversary process, and the developing relationship between law and the social sciences, humanities, and sciences. The content in this collection, which up to this point was difficult for scholars to access, has been digitized for the first time. Part II brings together records and briefs from 1891 to 1950 that have most influenced modern writing and thinking about American law and legal history.

The variety of information in the records and briefs includes:

- Cases on wartime issues raised during both world wars and cases affecting conscientious objectors to the internment of Japanese Americans.
- Decisions that focused on American Indian rights with respect to land claims, treaty enforcement, and other matters of critical interest to Indigenous communities.
- Briefs related to federal economic and labor regulations, such as reviews of decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission as well as the work of agencies created by the New Deal.
