ボルネオ島サラワクで行われたダヤク族の葬式（1871）

故人の弟である若くたくましいダヤクは、ここまでよく耐えていたが、ついに泣き崩れた。棺が下ろされる前に、父とともにその覆いの一部を取り、亡兄の槍を折って、その銀の剣や他の所持品とともに墓穴に埋めるのが彼の役割だったが、もはや耐え難く、深い悲しみに震えながら、幾度も幾度も嘆きの言葉を叫ぶのだった。

We hear that the school established and supported by Government at Paku for the education of Chinese children in that neighbourhood is doing well. Ten boys live in the School-house with their teacher, and good work is being done. These boys are fed and taught free of expense; and it seems very difficult to get boys to come to school under any other conditions.

The lower classes of Chinese, many of whom are willing enough to send their children, are really too poor to pay for their instruction. The fee charged by their own Singangs is one dollar per month, and one or two attempts have been made with indifferent success to get together pupils at this rate in the Bazaar here—when the money is generally found to be not forthcoming. There are now some 11 Chinese boys in Sarawak seeking instruction. They cannot be received into the Mission School, where it is a rule not to admit any but the youngest children, except under special circumstances, for fear of moral contagion. If nothing is ever done for them here, it is to be hoped they will betake themselves without delay to the Paku School.

A DYAK FUNERAL.

A Kalah Dyak named Naggar, a friend and follower of mine for years, the kindest in the sick-room and the bravest on every expedition, was killed in the late attack on Bangkit. His body was enclosed in an air-tight coffin and brought back and it was my painful but willing duty to follow it to its last resting place, the ceremony which I witnessed and part of which I shared was as follows:—

As the deceased formerly lived in the Awit river, (a tributary of the Krisan) it was determined to inter him there in the cemetery set apart for the remains of brave Dyaks who fall in battle. To that place we proceeded by water, a procession of boats, the one containing the corpse coming last; scarcely a word was spoken, and the wailing from the women in the embroidered cloths and the Sarawak flag was brought up and laid along, and pieces of wood placed across the mouth, and then followed a very harrowing scene. The brother of the deceased, a fine strapping young Dyak who had borne up well hitherto, at last broke down. It was his duty aided by his father to take off some of the trapping or pall from the coffin before it was lowered, and also to break his lost brother's spears and place them with his silver mounted sword and sundry other personal effects in the grave. This was too much for him; trembling with excessive anguish of grief, he poured out lamentation upon lamentation; and literally bathed in tears, he called upon his brother to hear him, "Oh Naggar, Naggar, do you hear my voice? I cannot leave you!" then pausing for a while he would go on with his work, telling us in broken accents interrupted with deep drawn sobs, of his brother's deeds in war and at home, dwelling upon his kindness and bravery, and so on, until another burst of grief would well up and paralyze him. The bereaved father, a fine old man, went stolidly and silently about his work without shedding a tear, his woe begone face and quivering lip told however of his deep sorrow; once only he spoke, when all was ready, and I had covered the coffin all over with the Sarawak flag, and it was lowered into its shallow grave, then he cried out once "Oh Naggar! my son, my son!" That was all. And so we covered up the remains of my poor friend and placed at his feet a jar I had provided, and at his head his shield; over him we hung mosquito curtains a bundle of bamboo spikes and poisoned arrows, then fenced the grave with stout stakes and covered it with kajangs. A mimic Dyak fortification was then built with queer little bamboo cannons pointing over the spiked ground. I led the brother away, who seemed quite unmannered and faint, and did my best to comfort him, telling him the old sweet story of Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori, for Naggar died like a true warrior, receiving his death wound full in front fighting in the van of battle. I bade him cheer up, but his is a deep sorrow which only time can soften or erase.

When all was concluded, those present held a funeral feast on the other side of the river, but feeling unfit to join them I excused myself and left.

Letters to the Editor
JAPAN'S PROMISE TO BUY BURMA RICE
TO THE EDITOR, "RANGOON GAZETTE"

SIR.—It was not my intention to write further on the above subject if there had been a satisfactory reply to my questions. On the other hand a Rangoon paper was inspired to discuss it under the caption of "Japan and Burma Rice" in the News and Views of its issue of the 11th instant.

Apart from an undignified reference to me for my letter in your paper of the 12th instant it only asserted: "Dr. Thein Maung has made it clear that Japan will buy from Burma as much rice as she can spare. This should be encouraging to the Burmese cultivators and traders and there is no reason to suppose why they should be disappointed."

Unfortunately there is no doubt that the statement has encouraged the Burmese cultivators and traders. They are not only delaying to sell the paddy but also commencing to store by buying at prices much above the parity of the rice values in consuming markets. If they are not to be disappointed it is absolutely necessary for Dr. Thein Maung to make further statements to enable them to sell at the peak of the market during the season or to hold on indefinitely if he can corroborate and substantiate his statement.

In my practical experience of the rice and paddy trade for the last 25 years there have been many seasons when it

Malayan Triumphs At Cambridge

SINGAPORE STUDENT TOPS LAW EXAMS

Woman Also Scores Notable Success

For the first time in the history of Cambridge University a Malayan has topped the pass list of the Law Tripos, Part II, and has been awarded a star signifying distinction for work of special merit, the first ever given to a Malayan in any subject.

He is Lee Kuan Yew, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Tse Chin Koon, of Singapore.

Lee was educated at Raffles Institution, and was first in the Malayan list for the school certificate examinations in 1939. He went to Cambridge, to Fitzwilliam House, in January 1947, and took a first in June in the Law Qualifying

GIRL MAKES HISTORY

For the first time also in Cambridge history, a woman from Malaya has taken a first, and is the only woman in the university to have done so since 1946, in Part II of the Law Tripos.

She is Kwa Geok Choo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kwa Siew Tee, of Singapore, who was educated at the Methodist Girls School, Singapore, where she topped the Malayan list for the School Certificate examination in 1936.

At Raffles College she won a first-class diploma and was awarded the Queen's Scholarship. She went to Girton College, Cambridge, in October 1947. She and Lee Kuan Yew were among the first batch to graduate after a lapse of six years.

K.L. LAWYER'S SON

Among the seven was Yong Pung How of Downing College, president of the Cambridge University Malayan Association, who took a second class first division in the Law Tripos, Part II. Yong is the son of Mr. Yong Shook Lin, Kuala Lumpur lawyer and Federal Legislative Councillor.

Other Malaysians graduating are Khong Kit Soon, a tennis blue, who gained third class honours in the Engineering Tripos. Cecil Wong

Alleged Indignities At Check Points In Malaya

KUALA LUMPUR, January 18—
The Selangor State War Executive Committee decided yesterday to ask for a full public inquiry into allegations that people of Semenyih village have been subjected to indignities while being searched at food check points.

During the storm which has arisen over the searches of villagers to prevent food reaching the Communist terrorists, it had been charged that women were stripped naked and had to go nude into the open to recover their clothing.

Forty estate owners in nearby Kajang have proposed that their labourers be asked to strip in two

REPORT ON THE CONDUCT OF FOOD SEARCHES AT SEMENYIH

TO HIS EXCELLENCY
THE HIGH COMMISSIONER.

Your Excellency,

I.—APPOINTMENT AND SITTINGS OF THE COMMISSION

I was appointed on 20th January, 1956, by Your Excellency in Council to be a Commissioner under the Commissions of Inquiry Ordinance, 1950, with the following terms of reference:

"To enquire into and report to the High Commissioner on the manner in which the security forces in the course of Emergency operations carried out searches of persons within the Kajang Police District in the State of Selangor during the period from January 1st, 1956, to January 18th, 1956, with particular reference to searches carried out within that period at SEMENYIH in the aforesaid District."

and on 24th January, 1956, Mr. W. I. Galletly, M.C., was appointed to be my Secretary. In accordance with section 16 of the Ordinance, I invited the assistance of the Public Prosecutor and he was good enough to appoint Mr. P. G. Clough, Federal Counsel, to assist me in the investigation of the subject matter of the Inquiry. I now have the honour to submit my Report.

2. I held my first sitting in public at the Court house at Kajang, which is some five miles from Semenyih on 26th January, 1956. I explained the terms of reference and made an appeal emphasising the importance of the matter in the public interest and asking any member of the public who could give any relevant information to come forward and say what he or she knew. I pointed out that it was not necessary for any member of the public to go to the Police and that if desired arrangements would be made to protect the anonymity of any person who did come forward. I also referred to section 11 of the Ordinance which provides that no evidence taken under the Ordinance shall be admissible in any civil or criminal proceedings whatsoever against the person who gave such evidence except when such person is charged with giving or fabricating false evidence. Thereafter I held public sittings at Kajang on eight days commencing on 20th February, 1956, and terminating on 28th February, 1956. I also visited Semenyih on two occasions and attended with counsel a demonstration which I shall later describe at Headquarters, Malaya Command, Kuala Lumpur. At these sittings I heard the evidence of 56 witnesses a list of whom is attached (Appendix I)
