A Good Deed

11 Long ago, an ant was crawling through the woods. She was 26 going to a brook to get a sip of cool water. When the ant reached 39 the brook, she stood at the edge and leaned over to drink. But 51 then she lost her footing and fell in! She would have drowned, 64 but a bird in a tree looked down and saw her struggling. The 77 bird quickly picked a leaf from the tree and tossed it into the 89 brook. The grateful ant got on the leaf and floated safely to 97 shore. She thanked the bird for helping her.

110 At noon the next day, the ant saw a hunter in the woods.
123 The hunter was about to scoop up the bird with his net. The 134 ant acted quickly and bit the hunter’s foot. The hunter howled
146 in pain, shook his foot, and dropped his net. The bird escaped
157 and thanked the ant. And the ant said, “One good deed
159 deserves another!”
